Code Self Portrait
2/6/20

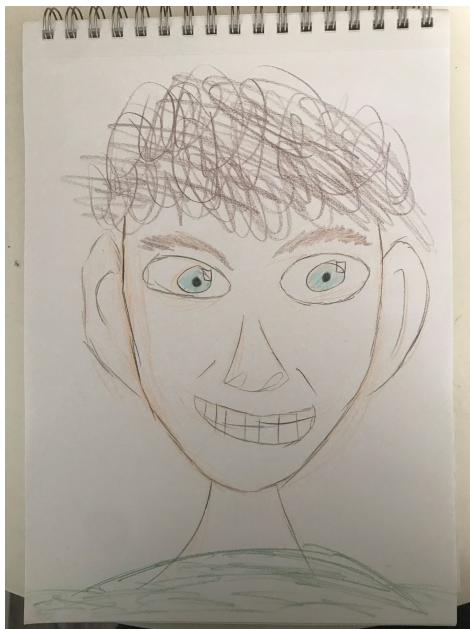

Assignment:

Sketch a self portrait then turn that portrait into a Processing sketch

Audience:

Professor and students

Hand drawn sketch:

Interaction Design:

I made words that spin which is pretty cool. They freak out a bunch though.

Reflection:

Making this was super fun! It was good to move everything around and make it look good! The worst part was when my computer died and I lost all my work so I had to start again. The second time around I made an angry face and added a quick animation to remind me to save my work in the future. Using Processing also makes me miss using other text editors that can fill in your variables or functions so that it's harder to have errors like accidentally spelling ellipse like "ellispe" or "elipse".
